

on.board - E.ON Students Program

Keen to set the course of your career early on? We'll give you a helping hand: Come on.board!

Intern or working student today, key member of the E.ON team tomorrow. This is possible at E.ON.

Bright young talent is highly sought-after at our company. It helps us to drive our business forward and brings a breath of fresh air. Your time as an intern or working student at E.ON will last at least six weeks, long enough for us to get to know each other. We give you the freedom to work independently, encourage you, and give you access to extensive practical insights. If you convince us at this stage with your superb work, your department can submit your name for on.board.

After all, if you've impressed us, we wouldn't want to just watch you leave again. Perhaps you're an E.ON employee of the future, just waiting for the chance.

You want the very best for your professional future? We do, too!

Get off to a flying start with us.
Our common cause: your career.

Have you drawn attention to yourself by demonstrating a highly dedicated and committed attitude, bringing your own ideas with you, and assuming initial responsibilities of your own? If so, then you are right for the on.board - E.ON Students Program, with which we open up new paths and opportunities for your future career.

If you have impressed us on the job, professionally and personally, we will be keen to build on our relationship with you early on and actively support you in your ongoing development. With exceptional prospects: from university work experience through to being a successful employee at E.ON.

You're networked on.board with us. Both online and through personal career coaches!

Individual support and networking: Here's where you make contacts.

Your career advancement does not take the form of an anonymous program at our company. Once you are on.board, you will be assigned a personal mentor. You will then be able to network and talk shop on an online platform, both with that person and with other participants.

You will also remain on.board and in close touch with us even during the period "between E.ON." That way you are kept up to date about other internships, topics for university theses, and job vacancies.

We will also invite you to workshops on a regular basis, where you will receive information about the latest projects and entry prospects - and have the opportunity to network on an international level with other participants.

Coming on.board: How to get your boarding pass

Great achievements and in the middle of your studies:
The interview clinches it.

You should have at least two semesters toward your degree ahead of you if you wish to come on.board with us. If you can show that you have what E.ON needs, you can be recommended for the program by your department.

The only missing pieces then are your initiative in submitting the application and an impressive performance at the subsequent interview. It is that easy to get your hands on your boarding pass for entry to a successful future.

“Based on my performance as a working student, my superior suggested that I should apply for on.board. And I have never looked back: on.board was a great point of entry that gave me an insight into many different areas. I found the workshops rewarding, too, as they dealt with practical subjects, such as an Assessment Center training unit. I was soon able to make use of this experience – when applying for the E.ON Graduate Program. The result: I am now an engineer – and a highly satisfied trainee.”

Andreas Bader, Trainee at E.ON Energie AG, who started out on.board.

E.ON AG

E.ON-Platz 1

40479 Düsseldorf

Germany

www.eon-careers.com